WAR GOES ON AS ALLIES AWAIT REPLY FROM JAPS

Jap Troops Quit Fight, Chinese Say

SAN FRANCISCO — Radio Chungking said today that Japanese troops in Chekiang province on China's east coast had ceased fighting because of Japan's surrender offer.

The broadcast, recorded by the FCC, said a Japanese liaison officer had been dispatched to the Chinese first ground division in that area "to negotiate surrender."

"It also was revealed that Japanese troops were being disarmed in that province," the broadcast said. Chekiang province lies just south of Shanghai.

The broadcast attributed the information to an official spokesman of the Chinese high command.

CHUNGKING—A spokesman for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek warned the Japanese they will be held accountable if they surrender their arms to Chinese Communists.

The warning followed Chiang's sharp command yesterday to Chinese Communist leaders, over whom he has only nominal control, to "remain in their present areas and wait for further directions."

Vice Minister of Information Hollington Tong was asked, after the two warnings were issued, whether civil war in China was anticipated.

"THERE WILL BE NO civil war," he replied.

A ministry of information spokesman told correspondents it had been charged previously that the Japanese were turning over their arms to the Chinese Communists "with the object of creating disturbances in China."

However, he failed to specify where and when the Japanese handed over any arms to the Communists. Correspondents were unable to verify the report.

Chiang's action was taken after Communist leaders prematurely proclaimed that Japan has surrendered unconditionally."

MANILA—A spokesman for Gen. MacArthur announced today that air and ground forces under his command will continue their offensive against the enemy from Japan to the Solomons until the final "cease fire" order has been given.

Though today's air force targets were not identified immediately, MacArthur disclosed that more than 400 far eastern air force planes destroyed or damaged 51 Japanese vessels on Saturday.

American troops mopping up on Leyte and Mindanao last week killed 3,730 Japanese and captured 405.

Liberators, Mitchells, Invaders, Boeing Lightnings, Thunderbolts and Mustangs raided southern Japan and the Asiatic coast on Saturday.

Oppose Further Drafting of Men

WASHINGTON—Members of the Senate military affairs committee today joined House demands for an end of selective service immediately upon Japan's surrender.

Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) said "it will be foolish to keep on drafting boys into the army after the war ends."

Brig. General Lewis B. Hershey said recently that inductions would continue at 100,000 a month after V-J day.

The present selective service law runs to May 15, 1946, but it may be terminated by the President's proclamation that hostilities have ceased, or by joint congressional resolution.

Sen. Harley M. Kilgore, D., W. Va., said the army should not "continue compulsory induction to achieve the greatest possible release of men from service, and should commence [illegible]

Russians Push Nearer Harbin

LONDON—Tokyo said Soviet amphibious troops landed today at two points 60 miles apart on the Japanese Gulf of Sakhalin island, which stretches within 20 miles of the enemy's home island of Hokkaido.

The Soviets went ashore at Aniwan, on the west coast just below the Soviet-Japanese border on Sakhalin, and at Esutoro 60 miles farther south, Radio Tokyo quoted the northern army district command as announcing.

Tokyo reported last Friday that some Soviet troops had crossed from the Soviet-owned northern half of Sakhalin island into the Japanese-held section, but these apparently were only on reconnaissance. The Japanese half of Sakhalin is known as Karafuto.

Russia ordered her far eastern armies to speed their already deep invasions of Manchuria and Korea. Chanchun (Hsinking), the Manchurian capital, already had been partly evacuated, Tokyo said.

In Manchuria, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky's three far eastern armies gained up to 70 miles in swift advances toward the military and railway hub of Harbin, 150 miles north of Changchun.

The eastern and western arms of the mammoth pincers closed on Harbin were within 500 miles of a junction. Closest to Harbin —175 miles—was the eastern column.

LITTLE STEEL FORMULA HIT

LANSING—Demands that the "Little Steel formula" be abolished as a basis for wage rates were sounded yesterday when nearly 1,000 UAW-CIO members staged a mass demonstration rally on the state Capitol lawn.

George F. Addes, Detroit, international secretary-treasurer of the union, led the vocal attack on the wage-freezing order.

Wages have been held to a 15 per cent increase despite the fact that the cost of living has increased more than 40 per cent since 1941," Addes declared. "Industrial profits have increased 170 per cent in the three years since Pearl Harbor."

Joseph Rogers, Lenco 16 Hershey said recently that industries would continue at 100,000 a month after V-J day.

War department sources said they expect the army to be cut to 3,000,000 within a year after Japan collapses.

ELDER HORNYAK LEAVING CITY FOR ONE YEAR

Elder Stephen Hornyak of the Seventh Day Adventist church, Fourth-av and Talcot-st, today began a year's leave of absence and will be replaced by Elder Judson P. Habenicht, of Battle Creek.

Elder and Mrs. Hornyak and son, Stephen and daughter, Barbara, left today for St. Petersburg, Fla., to visit Mrs. Hornyak's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Harding, who are in failing health.

Earlier this week the Hornyaks were hosts to her sister, Mrs. John Menhart, Mr. Menhart and children Elmer, Marian, William and John of Detroit, and to his brother, Julius Hornyak, of Vassar.

Elder and Mrs. Habenicht are occupying the Hornyak residence at 809 Eighth. They have as their guest Mrs. Fred Habenicht of Jackson, their sister-in-law, and wife of Cpl. Habenicht in Italy.

Liberation Near For 17,000 Held Captive By Japs

WASHINGTON—The day of resurrection for the living dead—the 17,000 American prisoners of war and interned civilians held by the Japanese—seemed at hand today after more than three long years of hope and despair.

Plans for their return home have been completed. The Japanese, under the allied surrender terms, must see that the war prisoners and civilian internees are transferred promptly to places of safety "as directed," where they can be placed aboard allied transports without delay.

How many of the 17,000 last reported alive will ever see home again may not be known until the master roll is completed. During the last few months of war, the Japanese moved American prisoners into their homeland cities and advertised it loudly in the apparent hope that U. S. airmen would desist from further bombings. The Japanese even reported some of these prisoners killed and injured in American air raids. Others may have succumbed to disease and mistreatment.

According to the War department's Aug. 2 listing, the Japanese at that time held 13,424 U. S. fighting men as prisoners of war and an estimated 3,600 civilians.

The War department records showed that 5,930 American war prisoners died in the hands of the Japanese. About 3,500 were killed unintentionally by American bombs and torpedoes. The Japanese reported that about 3,000 died of wounds and the remainder of sickness and neglect.

Sgt. Hensel Gets $60,000

BATTLE CREEK—Master Sgt. Frederic Hensel, first World War II casualty to lose portions of all four limbs, spoke happily today about the little chicken farm he'll have soon.

The 26-year-old veteran of Okinawa, described by a fighting buddy as the "bravest man of the war," ordered more than $60,000 in cash gifts converted to war bonds until he can choose the farm site himself.

Representatives of Detroit and Chicago newspapers showered the cash gifts on Sgt. Hensel and his pretty brunette wife, Jewell, as they celebrated their third wedding anniversary Sunday at Percy Jones hospital, where the Pacific veteran faces a series of four operations to prepare for artificial limbs.

"I DON'T KNOW WHAT to say," Hensel said. "Just tell everyone I said thanks a lot, and everyone sure has been swell."

The gifts flowed in to the newspapers, from more than 30,000 readers, and were supplemented by many more useful gifts sent direct to Hensel at the hospital.

Among other gifts were a $3,500 deluxe, three-room trailer, held in readiness by a Chicago firm for the sergeant when he is able to leave the hospital, equipment which permits projection of 16 mm sound film on the ceiling of his room, sent by screen comedians Bud Abbott and Lou Costello, and a small leather-covered traveling alarm clock, Hensel's anniversary gift from his wife.

IN ADDITION, well-wishers from all parts of the nation have sent cash gifts totaling $4,140.75 directly to Hensel at the hospital, and he has been notified that $4,900 more is being sent from Louisville, Ky.

Greetings poured in on Hensel and his wife from Mayor Burt Rowland of Cadiz, Ky., the sergeant's home town. Wayne Edward Kelly of Chicago, and from hundreds of citizens throughout the country.

An average of 175 package and letters have been sent to him at the hospital since his plight was revealed.

HENSEL WAS ABLE to sit up in a wheel chair for his anniversary yesterday for the first time.

Hensel thinks often of the friends he left behind on Okinawa, where a land-mine blast led to his present condition.

"I wish we'd had those atomic bombs there," he said. "They really do a job." Then he added wistfully, "I hope the war ends. It will mean the saving of the lives of a lot of our men."

—some 2,000 died of various causes, mainly malnutrition, abuse and neglect.

Chinese Envoy Expects Good News Any Moment

WASHINGTON—The hours—and the war—dragged on today. At 12:10 p.m., nearly 50 hours after the allied reply to Japan's surrender offer had been dispatched, the White House had received no official word of acceptance from Tokyo.

White House secretary Charles G. Ross said the allies had placed no time limit for an answer to their note dispatched at 10:35 a.m. Saturday.

Asked whether a third atomic bomb would be dropped on Japan if no reply were forthcoming soon, he said "I do not know. If I did, I wouldn't say."

THE CHINESE AMBASSADOR Dr. Wei Tao Ming conferred with President Truman briefly, shortly after 11:30 a.m. and told reporters later he personally believed that the "good news will come at any moment." Asked on what he based his belief, he replied:

"On many things, but I'd better not say. But it will come—I believe it will come."

Ross noted a Tokyo broadcast that the allied communication arrived in the enemy capital on Monday, Japanese time. (Monday in Tokyo begins when it is about noon Sunday here.)

"If that is true," he said, "they have had our terms for 12 hours."

"But," he added in apparent reference to the fact that the allied reply has been repeatedly shortwaved to Japan, "they certainly knew what was in our terms."

MEANWHILE,- A JAPANESE Domei news agency broadcast said it was cancelling certain regularly scheduled transmissions to the Orient for the next 12 hours. No explanation was given.

At Ross' White House press conference a reporter asked:

"Is it safe to assume that there is no letup in the war."

"It is safe to say," Ross replied, "that the war is going on."

Then Ross was asked whether there was any "understanding" among the allies as to how much time Japan would be given.

"Not to my knowledge," he said. He then added that "you have the whole of it in publication," of the note dispatched Saturday.

THAT APPARENTLY EXplained the Japanese delay in replying—if the Japanese were telling the truth about its arrival. There was no explanation however, of the delay in transmission. The original Japanese surrender offer arrived here 11 hours after its broadcast by Tokyo radio.

Today's Japanese broadcast said Emperor Hirohito, who has become a sort of pawn in the exchange of messages, received foreign minister Shigenori Togo at the imperial palace this afternoon.

Presumably they were consulting on a reply.

Meanwhile, the allies were preparing to unleash unprecedented blows against the Japanese if they decide to stall indefinitely.

Third Fleet Resumes Air Raids on Japan

GUAM—Carrier planes from the third fleet destroyed or damaged several score enemy aircraft parked on airfields in the Tokyo area today and pilots reported only light Japanese anti-aircraft fire.

Striking while Japan debated whether to surrender, hundreds of American and British carrier planes also bombed, rocketed and strafed a submarine base, shipping, railway targets and other military objectives in a sudden resumption of their assault on the enemy homeland.

A Japanese announcement said 800 carrier planes attacked the Tokyo-Yokohama area for 12 hours and caused "some damage." The broadcast claimed 17 planes had been shot down and at least 25 others damaged.

RADIO TOKYO SAID THE third fleet was cruising off the Tokyo area and speculated the allies were preparing for landing operations is the "near future." (As quoted by the Exchange Telegraph agency in landing might come "at any moLondon, the broadcast said the ment.")

More than 400 allied ships have been concentrated at Okinawa and ground forces there have been "drastically increased," by the transfer of troops from Leyte in the Philippines, Tokyo said.

South and central Japan also were under attack by Okinawa-based planes of Gen. MacArthur's command. Tokyo said 30 allied planes, presumably from Okinawa, raided Wakayama and Nara, 35 miles south and 20 miles east respectively of Osaka, and other areas of southwest Honshu about 11 a.m.

A DISPATCH FROM Admiral Halsey's third fleet quoted pilots who participated in the day's raids as saying that the Japanese were not putting up anywhere near so much opposition as in the past.

Neither were any Japanese planes seen in the air over Japan. However, a number attacked the third fleet's carriers. Several were shot down.

Bad weather over Tokyo itself prevented most allied planes from getting through to the capital so the pilots hit coastal airfields and targets of opportunity.

Offers $5,000 Reward For Tip on Fake Peace Bulletin

NEW YORK—Hugh Baille, president of the United Press, last night offered $5,000 reward for the identification and conviction of the person who fed into the UP wire system shortly after 9:30 p.m. a false report Japan had accepted the allies' surrender terms.

The UP immediately reported the case to the Federal Bureau of Investigation and the Federal Communications commission, Charles R. Denny, acting member of the F. C. C. said he would be glad to have all available information on the case.

The flash fed into the UP's southern wire system at 9:34 o'clock last night. It carried a Washington dateline and said the Japanese had accepted the surrender terms.

Within two minutes the UP ascertained that the flash had not originated in its Washington bureau. A kill on the flash was then sent, but the erroneous information already had been broadcast by some radio stations.

The American Telephone and Telegraph co from which the UP leases its wires, started its own investigation.

The southern circuit of the UP wires runs from Portland, Me., through Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Atlanta, Memphis, Nashville, Miami, Fla., and New Orleans.

There are 12 points along the circuit which regularly send news. Presumably the flash was fed into the up circuit from one of those points, although it would be possible for a person with sufficient mechanical knowledge to hook another teletype onto the UP wires and send a few words which would appear to come from a regular bureau point.

Only U. S. Knows Atom Bomb Details

OTTAWA—Munitions Minister C. D. Howe revealed today that, while the United States, Great Britain, and Canada share the scientific knowledge upon which the atomic bomb is based, only the United States knows the details of the bomb's manufacture.

Howe explained that Canada's role in the production of the bomb was to supply "the essential raw materials," leaving it to the United States to devise its manufacture into weapon form.

"Canada has the right to ask for the details of manufacture, but so far has not done so," the minister stated.

He said Canada had not wished to accept responsibility for possible leakage of manufacturing details and that United Kingdom had taken a similar attitude.

Soviet Russia, while familiar with the fact that atomic experiments were in progress had not been associated with the development of the bomb.

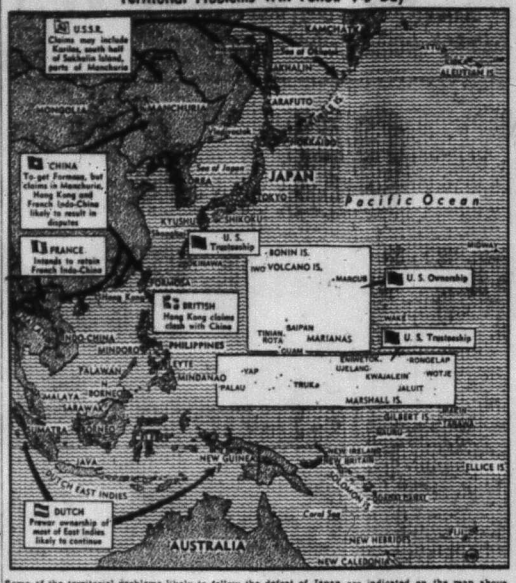
WAGE CONTROL WILL CONTINUE

WASHINGTON—The end of the Pacific war will bring with it no immediate abandonment of the government's control over wages.

The present policy will be liberalized, officials say, but some form of government wage control must be exercised until civilian goods are again on the market in abundance and the danger of inflation is past.

High government officials have long advocated liberalization of the present wage freeze within a few months after the close of hostilities. They believe that the country must continue to "hold the line" but that some wage relief must be granted if the public's buying power is to be maintained at its present or during the reconversion period.

Territorial Problems Will Follow V-J Day



Some of the territorial problems likely to follow the defeat of Japan are indicated on the map above. Some, such as China's possession of Formosa and retention by the Dutch of sovereignty over most of the East Indies, doubtless will be settled with difficulty. Others, such as conflicting Chinese-Russian interests in Manchuria, those of China and Britain in Hong Kong, and China and France in French Indo-China, may prove extremely difficult. To be settled also will be the status of former Jap mandated islands, although the consensus is that the United States either will be owner of trustee of groups designated on the map.

Chinese Envoy Expects Good News Soon

More atomic bombs are ready for use.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN WAITED at the White House for the news which would mean that World War II was over—except for the final formalities of signing the surrender articles.

At No. 10 Downing Street in London, Prime Minister Atlee went to work early to be ready for the expected word that Japan was ready to endorse her defeat.

In Switzerland, where the Japanese message will be relayed to Washington, communications were functioning normally and no delay was anticipated when the time comes.

THE WHITE HOUSE announced President Truman will not proclaim V-J day until the surrender articles are signed by Japan's emissaries.

Presidential Secretary Ross estimated that two or three days might elapse between receipt of Japan's surrender agreement and signature of the articles—assuming that the little men do surrender. There is abundant confidence here that Japan will quit now.

Surrender signatures will be affixed somewhere in the Pacific—Manila, Okinawa or, perhaps, aboard one of the vessels of Admiral Halsey's third fleet.

Wittke, St. Matthew's Herman the Rev. H. W. Meuser Trinity; Sanborn; Martin H. Martinson in behalf of Grace church; the Rev. M. W. Brueckner of Chelsea; former St. Paul pastor Herbert Kamake, St. Paul Brotherhood.

Presentation of a gift from the congregation was made by F. B. Searles. The gift was a substantial check and a round trip ticket, Waverly to Alpena, to enable the Rev. Moeller's trip to Alpena during the last hunting season.

APPRECIATION OF THE gift and of the friendships formed during his years of service at St. Paul was expressed by the Rev. Moeller.

The musical program included assembly singing accompanied by Clifton Kirchoff; a quartet by Mesdames Erwin Bobeltz, Cora Werth, Gasel Nedry and Miss Freida Bott; duet by Elden Grahow and Harry Werth; song of Brotherhood and a vocal "A Perfect Day" by Mrs. Nedry. Miss Laura Behnke was accompanist.

Travel Trouble

Advice to people about to start for Europe: Don't!

It is probably the worst of all possible times for such a trip. It is almost impossible to travel or find living accommodations when an American does get there, and nine times out of ten he will be increasing the difficulties of Americans already there. Transportation, food, lodging and everything else connected with such a venture is incredibly difficult.

How about trips in this country? Not so bad as in Europe, yet surprisingly difficult and troublesome.

Even as the war ends, it is no time for vacationing, except possibly small ones for short distances. People who have comfortable homes in city or country should feel lucky that they have them, and stay there, leaving travel facilities to the armed forces and others who are obliged to travel.

Returned Ballplayers

Can the returned G. I.'s take up their jobs where they left them, or will they find an interruption in their skill? Baseball followers have been asking this question, just like everybody else. Now evidence is coming in that they can.

Hank Greenberg, Detroit's mighty slugger, hit a home run in his first league game in three years, and has been doing pretty well ever since. Red Ruffing, former bellwether of the New York Yankees' pitching staff, won his first three games after his return, making his grand total of big league victories 240. Though 44, he has a fair chance of joining the exceedingly small and select group of pitchers who have won 300 or more games in their career.

Successful ballplaying requires such perfect physique and quick reactions that several years in the service plus the advancing age that goes with them, might easily spell a big leaguer, but Greenberg's and Ruffing's success will encourage admirers of other stars still in the armed services.

Barbs

The atomic bomb has put it squarely up to the world as its future—peace or pieces!

An electric light bulb used on warships withstands battle shocks. Perfect for the front hall when dad comes home late!

Just move in a nice place in the country or near a lake, if you want peck friends to drop in and stay and stay and stay.

A large apple crop is in the offing. Orchards will be safe—just as soon as school opens.

Yawata, the "Pittsburgh of Japan," got a real break. It was hit only by demolition bombs from 29th Superforts.

It isn't so bad for the Mr. to spend his vacation at home if the Mrs. doesn't plan all the things he's to do.

Ten bathing suits were found in the bottom of a park swimming pool in Topeka, Kan.—and that's the naked truth.

Release Doctors

The hardest worked men in this town are the doctors, and the situation is just about the same everywhere.

Alpena has one-third fewer doctors than before the war and it seems that people are calling for medical service more than ever.

The demand being made on hard pressed doctors gives special point to the statement of the Michigan State Medical Society requesting the early separation from military service of unneeded medical officers. Doctors should not be retained in service to perform work which can be done as well by others, says the statement.

Michigan has 3,287 doctors in the army and navy and they have helped write a great chapter in the history of American medicine. Michigan was among the first states to fill and greatly exceed its quota of medical officers. It never has lagged in meeting additional demands upon the profession by the military authorities. The outstanding service rendered by these medical officers has merited awards in every combat area where American troops have served and are serving.

The army, navy and air force should not incur the criticism of the public or of the physicians in those services by holding any physician in military service a day longer than the interest of the country requires.

If the present intention of the military authorities is to discharge at an early date 1,500,000 men, then approximately 9,000 medical officers should be made available for return to civilian practice based on the regulation average of five doctors of medicine per thousand of personnel.

The Council of the Michigan State Medical Society urges that those in authority look upon the early and prompt release of physicians, when they can be spared, as a matter of the utmost urgency and importance. After the medical needs of all the armed services are satisfied, any delay in releasing a physician should be avoided as an injustice to the public, an unnecessary burden on the treasury, a source of criticism of those in authority, and unfair treatment of the doctor of medicine who is serving his country.

Near Disaster

The height of casualness was attained by that West Virginia truck driver who left on a street for five days a truck trailer containing 13 tons of dynamite. He was trying unsuccessfully to effect a reconciliation with his estranged wife. Meanwhile he left unattended enough dynamite to wreck half a medium-sized city. Dynamite is not so easily set off as people are apt to think, but had the city been blown up he would probably have felt much injured if he were blamed.

Life had fewer risks a hundred years ago. Also fewer opportunities.

No Earthly Paradise

BY JAMES THRASHER

On Aug. 6, 1945, there occurred, for the first time in history, an instantaneous revolution of human thought. One bomb dropped on one Japanese city, and the whole future changed. The minds of thoughtful men were confronted by both a blank wall and a new, limitless horizon suddenly disclosed.

There followed an epidemic of speculation. It was not the leisurely contemplation of a future based on established fact, but an urgent, bewildered groping. What was stated thus by the science writer, Dr. Frank Thone:

"Will atomic power bring on an earthly paradise after it has swiftly finished its present job of raising concentrated hell?"

Even a beginning of the authentic answer will be a long time coming. The first clue will come from the mere handful of men on earth who have understood and harnessed for human use a little of that ageless, limitless, universal force which baffles the ordinary mind even more than it disturbs it. The next will come from those non-scientific men into whose control the use of this new force will pass.

Dr. Thone, being better informed than most of us, has avoided any attempt at an answer and has, instead, put a few pertinent questions on which the answer must rest:

How much potential danger lies even in the wise and peaceable use of atomic power? What will atomic power do to present world economics? Will an abundant source of such power be found which will render coal, oil and water power obsolete? Or will the new power's development be prohibitively expensive?

What of the political consequences? Will there be an international struggle for uranium for a later and more plentiful source of atomic power that will surpass all other fights for natural resources?

Being more brash and less wise than Dr. Thone, we are going to hazard an answer to his first and general question, for it is the only one to which past history offers any key. And the answer is: No.

No scientific discovery has ever produced anything resembling an earthly paradise.

Such men as Copernicus, Galileo, Columbus, Newton and Darwin helped to define for us the world we live in. Today, in spite of their legacy of scientific wisdom, much of the world lies broken under the greatest war that ever raged upon this planet.

If the world works with enough wisdom and prays with enough zeal, perhaps the future will be different. But as of today, the prognosis is definitely not for any earthly paradise.

JOHN MURPHY GETS AIR MEDAL

FRANCE—Flight Officer John H. Murphy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Garnet A. Murphy of 624 Eighth, Alpena, Mich., and husband of Elizabeth Ann Murphy of 2340 Dudley Road, Louisville, Ky., has been awarded the air medal for meritorious achievement while participating in aerial flights over enemy territory. He has been serving overseas as glider pilot in a fighter air force service command unit. Frequently he was a member of the 17th Army Airborne Troops and the first allied airborne army.

F-O Murphy's citation was announced for serving as a pilot of a troop carrier glider, which formed part of a vast glider armada which successfully delivered thousands of allied troops and vast quantities of combat equipment to designated objectives behind enemy lines in the greatest airborne assault in military history, the vertical envelopment of the enemy east of the Rhine. Braving concentrations of enemy ground fire, he displayed exceptional airmanship, resolution and courage in flying his glider and aircraft to the specified landing zone deep into enemy occupied German territory.

The officer has participated in many airborne operations and during the fall following combat operations carried out vital missions of supplying allied forces advancing in enemy territory, with outstanding dependability. His operations has served in the Rhineland, Italian and Normandy campaigns. For the D-Day landings in France he was cited for the presidential distinguished unit citation for materially aiding the ground forces in establishing a beachhead. F-O Murphy now wears two bronze battle participation stars to his European Middle-Eastern Africa theater of operations ribbon.

He entered the service in December of 1940 and began overseas duty in September of 1944. He is in France with the 82nd squadron of the 314th troop carrier group.

Locked Out!

DOUGLAS LARSEN

In Washington...

By Douglas Larsen
NEA Washington Correspondent

One of the first man-on-the-street reactions to Russia's declaration of war on Japan was:

"Yes, as soon as we've got the Japs licked with our atom bomb they decide to get in on the kill."

Stories that the Russians knew nothing of the atomic bomb strengthened this idea. But regardless of whether the Reds were in on the bomb secret, their declaration of war on Japan is the climax of a plan carefully worked out by the Big Three since the defeat of Germany—maybe longer.

When it was decided Russia would fight Japan, U. S. officials agreed the Reds would need more fighting equipment. Deploying it over the vast rugged reaches of Russia from the distant western front for use against the Japs would be a tough job.

For months almost all available Russian ships have been arriving at Seattle, and other West Coast ports. They've been loaded with all kinds of war material and then sailed in almost a straight line—4200 miles—to Vladivostok. This port is the best place to unload for strategic distribution to equip and prepare Russian troops for the job ahead.

The Japs may have guessed what the cargo was, but if they did, they decided against risking immediate Russian entry into the war by attacking the ships.

Just how much war equipment got through is still a military secret. But the Big Three must think that the Russians are now well enough supplied to put up a continuing fight. To what extent the declaration was all a part of the first atomic bomb attack is a matter of speculation, but whether by chance or by plan, its effect couldn't have been better.

OF COURSE, IT IS HOPED that Japan will surrender immediately, but all this planning necessarily was based on the assumption that the Nips would fight it out to the end.

There are 85 miles of frontier across the jointly-owned island of Soviet Sakhalin and Japanese Karafuto. A vast expanse of Soviet land touches Jap-held Manchuria on the north and northeast, while a peninsula of Red territory dips southward along the coast of the Sea of Japan touching an eight-mile strip at the northeastern tip of Japanese Korea. The boundary in all is about 2000 miles long.

Estimate of the number of Jap troops which could be thrown against the Russians ranges from 1,000,000 to 5,000,000.

THE ROUTE THE SHIPS took is the amazing part of the whole plan. They boldly sailed between Hokkaido, upper island of the Jap home group, and Karafuto, which is the Jap-controlled half of the Sakhalin Island. That's practically through the heart of Japan.

Coming from between these islands, they entered the Sea of Japan and then into Vladivostok. If any part of the sea can be said to be Japcontrolled, this route is through that part. But the Russian ships were neutral as far as the Japs were concerned, and went through.

Town Talk

GOOD MORNING

Alpena went wild for about three minutes Sunday night during the interim between two radio announcements. The first said that the Japs had accepted Big Four peace terms and the second said that the first announcement was erroneous. The let down was terrific. In some instances, listeners who missed the second announcement were hilarious for nearly an hour. Conversation at the lunch counter is divided between the awaited Japs decision and Detroit's double victory over New York. Tigers spectators included a half hundred Alpena residents, including members of the Fraser Products softball team who were special guests of George Cavanaugh, president of the Fraser-co. They not only saw an action-packed doubleheader yesterday, but they witnessed Saturday's contest in which Detroit defeated Boston, 5-4

LITTLE RAIN fell in spite of the weatherman's prediction, but outlying sections received a heavy downpour. Precipitation was heavy at the Four-Mile dam Sunday, according to Mr. Shea, custodian of several buildings on Water-st including the ration board office.

RASPBERRY PICKERS are getting in a truck, but the number is insufficient, according to Herb Fox of the county agricultural agent's office. In three or four weeks, Herb will resume his job as principal of Bingham school.

HERE'S THE LATEST yarn about Lou Sova of The News staff and his recently-acquired Maxwell automobile which came off the assembly line before he was born. He drove to the Fair Grounds to attend the county fair. "Thirty-five cents," yelled the gateman. "Sold," replied Lou who got out of the car and walked away.

HUNDREDS OF SOLDIERS pleaded to be sent overseas, reports S-Sgt. Don Hoenshell after they had been in Italy for a few weeks. Most of them realized their desires after V-E Day.

THE BOWLING SEASON is just around the corner. Dick Firsch, president of the Industrial league, has called a meeting for Thursday night of this week for members of both the Industrial and Commercial leagues to iron out a few unsettled points. The site of the meeting will be announced later.

STONE MULCH THEORY

What will you do about all these stones when you plant your hills to orchard?" asked a city man who visited me.

"I'll plant between them," I told him. "I'll try using some of them for mulch around my trees."

"My dad and granddad used to keep us busy hauling and picking up stones off the fields we intended mowing—saved the knives of the mowing machine," he remembered.

"And they built stone fences. After a while the biggest trees on the farm, and the tallest crops grew along those fences," I suggested. "Is that right?"

"Yes," he said. "Why was that?"

I lifted a half-buried stone at my feet and we looked at it. A fishing worm dodged back into his hole. . . . The ground beneath the stone was moist and cool. The rock was native sandstone, with many colors showing in scattered segments. The side was pitted where it had worn away unevenly, in ridges.

"Might be gold in that rock," said he. "I saw horsetail fern growing back yonder. My grandad used to say that weed was a sign of gold in the ground."

"Some of the newest reading I have done was along the line of essential mineral elements for crops," I told him. "Seems like researchers are finding out there's need for many different minerals—even such odd ones as boron, zinc, aluminum and manganese in the soil. It's little imaginable to make the difference between a healthy plant and one that sickens or dies."

"Those elements wash out of the rocks, suppose?"

"That's it. And if the ones you need aren't in the rocks of your own locality, you have to bring them in and use them like fertilizer or lime . . . that is, if you want full flavor and vitamins in your crops."

"But if you have a layer of stones, not too close together around your trees, you think it will help the mineral content of the fruit?"

"It might—and it would furnish shelter for worms that are good soil tenders for trees. I think I will mulch alternately with stones and sawdust, in this row, and observe the difference."

"Beats all," was his only comment.

53,189 Fans See Tigers Stretch Lead Over Senators to Two Games

Tigers' New Hurlers Aid Pennant Cause

By Carl Lundquist
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — Any dangling doubts that the Detroit Tigers mean business about winning the American league pennant were dispelled today after week-end debuts by the two pitchers they picked up as "flag insurance."

The Tigers aren't comfortably in front as yet—only two games to the good with the tough Washington Senators dogging their tracks—but there is good reason to think that they have established a trend which will hold them during the waning weeks of the season.

YESTERDAY GENIAL JIM TO-bin, the exponent of the fluttering "screwball" made his debut as a relief pitcher in the ninth inning against the visiting Yankees. The Yankees swung themselves weak for three innings against his tantalizing blooms and oh nowhere. Then he broke their hearts in the 11th with a three-run homer to produce a 9 to 6 victory. Tobin, top home run hitter among major league pitchers, connected with a 400 foot drive to end the game. Hugo Derry had tied the score with a homer for the Yankees, sending the game into extra innings.

After Tobin's feat, Hal Newhouser had an easy time of it in winning his 18th game, 8 to 2, in the nightcap, backed by 12 hits and four Yankee errors. Bow Cullenbine got a Tiger homer.

The double win followed a Saturday victory in which George Caster waived away from the conquered Brewster town in his first relief role for the Tigers.

THE SENATORS GOT ONLY a split at St. Louis, winning the opener 9 to 5. Bob Muncrief pitched four-hit ball for the Browns in taking the second game, 4 to 1.

The White Sox lost their first Sunday game at Chicago this season when Philadelphia won the opener 7 to 6 behind Jess Flores' four-hit pitching. Chicago took the second game, 5 to 3.

Dave Ferriss, Boston's redoubtable rookie, won his 19th game against five defeats, beating Cleveland 7 to 3, but the Red Sox succumbed to the steady pitching of another ex-GI rookie named Pete Center, who hurled an 8 to 3 shutout for Cleveland in the opening game. It was his sixth straight win.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE Chicago Cubs waked away with a double bill over the Philadelphia Phils, 4 to 3 and 12 to 6, with Hank Wyse scoring his 18th victory.

Pinners by Mel Ott of New York gave the Giants a 6-5 victory over the Cincinnati Reds in the opener and 3-2 win in the second game.

The Cards and Dodgers split a doubleheader with St. Louis taking the opener 7-6.

Ing the opener 7-3 and Brooklyn the nightcap 3-0.

Preacher Roe of the Pittsburgh Pirates gave Boston only six hits for a 3-0 win in the second game.

Plans Return to U. S. to Collect More Cabbage

By Harry Grayson
Nea Sports Editor

SEQUALS, Italy — When Max Schmeling dropped into the United States to collect another rich purse, he could hardly wait for the next boat to return to Germany.

Now he's stuck with it.

"Schmeling is an old man," Primo Carnera tells you here. "Wounded in the leg at Crete, he can barely stand. He professes to despise the Germans because they stole his property in Czechoslovakia. His motion picture actress wife ran off with a Nazi party official. He talked mostly of America. He wants to go back. So do I.

"For some inexplicable reason, Schmeling would have no truck with Carnera when a match between them would have drawn a ton of money. He's owned the first that Ol' Satch was a towering set-up for a puncher, and Joe Louis or Moxie could easily smack with his right hand.

SCHMELING AND Carnera struck up a beautiful friendship with the war, however for when the sergeant of the paratroopers toured the Italian theater, the Ambling Alp and his attractive wife, Josephine, spent a weekend with him in nearby Venice, where the strange ex-champions made a propaganda movie for the Jerries. Then the Pretzel Pounder spent a week-end at Sequals with the Carneras.

Good-natured Carnera couldn't be mad at anybody for any length of time, but, like everybody else, the Germans left him with a bad taste in his mouth.

The Pretzel-Mauler had given him he withdrew $16,000 from a bank with which he intended to buy a piece of property. Broke into his $35,000 home on the nth here, and threatened to shoot his wife and children if he didn't come across.

Carnera was pictured as a tragic figure when he left the United States on one good leg in the spring of 1936. The Vast Venetian grossed $1,806,000 on the Great American Sucker Tours of 1930-31-32 and the profitable matches to which they led. But he was supposed to have returned home broken in health and poorer.

Yet here we find Carnera perfectly sound physically and financially at the astounded age of 56 (record books say 39).

IN ADDITION TO his home, Carnera has a small chicken ranch, a $50,000 trust fund, bonds and other possessions. He claims to have a fortune in a New York bank and two apartment houses in Newark.

Weighing 245 pounds, nine less than when he flattened Jack Sharkey with the invisible punch in 1933, Carnera works out regularly, wrestles occasionally and appears in exhibitions for American troops.

Although his legs are shot, Carnera wants to return to America to collect some more cabbages on his reputation.

One way or the other, don't be surprised to see Carnera walking down Broadway again shortly.

They don't call Uncle Sam Uncle Sugar for nothing, and this time Josephina will be the manager.

Carnera, it turns out, was far from being the sucker of the Great American Sucker Tours.

HINKLEY HURLS VAUGHN TO 7-3 BASEBALL WIN

Twenty years of baseball have not taken all the zip out of Leon Hinkley's pitching arm.

The veteran Hinkley hurled nine innings Sunday afternoon at Market Square for his Vaughn-Ragsdale nine against Oscoda Air Base and walked off with a 7-3 triumph.

Tom McDonnell, fork ball artist and regular Vaughn hurler, got the catching in fine style.

Vaughn Manager Hinkley who has been playing the infield for the past 10 years, once hurled for the Alpena Independents in their memorable contests with the fighting St. Mary nine.

Phil Skiba did the tossing for St. Mary.

Tobin Homers In Opener to Win Own Game

By Jack Des Chenes
United Press Staff Correspondent

DETROIT — A new hero had been lifted to dizzy pinnacles of esteem by the baseball minded here today.

He is pitcher Jim Tobin, fate of the Boston Braves in the National league, who donned a Tiger uniform yesterday in time to sock out a home run and pitch two-hit ball for three innings to give the Tigers a 9 to 6 triumph over the New York Yankees, in the curtain-raiser of a double-header viewed by 53,189 hysterical customers.

The pace-setting Tigers then put on a sizzling exhibition behind the six-hit pitching of Hal Newhouser—who racked up his eighteenth victory of the season—to take the nightcap, 8 to 2.

By virtue of the double defeat, the Yankees slipped to 5½ games behind the league-leading Tigers, while the Washington Senators fell back two full games by splitting a twin-bill with the St Louis Browns.

TOBIN HAD REPORTED to the Tigers only 24 hours before he was called upon for relief duty. Stubby Overmire, Walter Wilson and Les Mueller had preceded him to the mound in an attempt to stem a Yankee onslaught in which the score was tied twice on homers by Stirnweiss and Derry.

Boy Cullenbine's ninth homer of the year, added to an 11-hit attack on Bill Zuber, who started for the Yankees, plus four New York errors, allowed Newhouser to coast to victory in the finale.

In the first two innings of the opener, the Tigers got away to a four-run lead against Bevens on a four-hit splurge climaxed by Hank Greenberg's triple. However, Overmire was touched for four hits, including a home run by Stirnweiss, in the fourth that knotted the count.

RUDY YORK DOUBLED in the eleventh and Webb was sent in to run for him. Maier walked, after which Swift got on base in attempting to sacrifice.—Tobin, who was thrown out at third. Tobin then dug in and connected with Turner's second pitch.

Newhouser got into trouble in the third inning when two singles and a triple by Stirnweiss tivialdated a 1-0 Tiger lead gained on Cullenbine's homer.

Hank Greenberg collected three singles, a double and a triple in seven trips to the plate yesterday to boost his batting average to .292. He now has a home run, three triples, seven doubles and seven singles in the Tigers' last 12 home games.

Atom Bomb Proves Worse Than Earthquake

Americans, scores of miles away, who felt the cataclysmic effect of the experimental atom bomb exploded in New Mexico last July thought it was an earthquake. And well they might, for reports from the Jap city of Hiroshima after its blasting by an atom bomb indicate that many more people were killed than died in the great Japanese earthquake of 1923, one of the worst single disasters in modern times. Another indication of the lethal power of atomic energy is the comparison of Hiroshima's death toll with total of Americans killed in World War I.

New Insect Repellent Now Available In Alpena

The insect repellent, known to thousands of GI's in the Pacific, Africa, Sicily and Italy, as "Formula 6-12" will shortly be available in limited quantities for farmers, yachtsmen, sportsmen and others to use in insect-infected areas for the remainder of the season, according to an announcement by Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corporation.

Insect Repellent 6-12 was originally developed to protect soldiers from the malaria mosquito. Medical officers give this material much credit for its assistance in the control of malaria and other insect-borne diseases that plagued our fighting men in advanced areas in the jungle-covered tropics. It will prove equally valuable to farmers and sportsmen because it repels black flies, gnats, fleas and chiggers, as well as nuisance mosquitoes.

This repellent is used by applying a few drops in a thin layer either to all exposed areas of the skin or to the clothing where insects are biting through. It does not affect clothing and does not injure the skin. Each application furnishes complete protection for several hours.

Tests on 6-12 by Rutgers University and several government agencies show that the actual protection time against insects varies with individuals and with conditions. More frequent application is usually required if the user is active and perspiring freely. An active, perspiring user obtains from two to four hours' protection against mosquitoes, and an inactive user may obtain up to six hours' protection. As a result, this new repellent is rated as six to seven times more effective than 100 per cent citronella and it has a much more pleasing odor, somewhat like witch hazel. Distributed in Alpena by W.
